The Editor's Column

From the manager of the Carmel Theater comes the following excellent letter, giving his point of view on the kids-out-of-hand-at-the-show situation.

Dear Editor:

I wish to thank you and also call you down on your editorial in last issue of the Pine Cone.

The praise can wait until later. I should like to point out the fact that the Carmel theater, and every theater in the country for that matter, is doing its utmost to bring to the movie going public the best possible entertainment in these trying war times.

Wartime restrictions have placed movie production at a low point and so, as with everything else, we must take the bad with the good.

And now to the local kid situation. I heartily approve your suggestion for a recreation club. This is something Carmel really needs, and would certainly pay dividends by giving the young people something to do beside hang around on street corners and causing disturbances in the theater.

I have questioned several of the young fellows as to why they come to the theater to play around and make it unpleasant for the rest of the patrons. The answers are usually the same, "We just wanted to have some fun," or "There's nothing else to do around here." I know that none of the boys are really bad as even the habitual trouble-makers always apologize and behave themselves for a short time. I am doing my best to curb these disturbances as are all of my staff, but with 60 or 70 high school students in the theater at one time, this becomes quite a problem.

Thanks again for your suggestion, and I hope it becomes a re-

Alec Miller, Sculptor and Carver, Back Again in Carmel, Is Recreating Joan of Arc in Marble and Alabaster

By IRENE ALEXANDER

In the summer of 1941, before the peculiar glow that was Tilly Polak's shop had departed from Ocean avenue, it housed for an all-too-brief period a one man exhibit of wood carving, the work of Alec Miller.

This fine collection—in the opinion of Tilly Polak and all who came to view it, one of the finest ever to be shown in her gallery, made a lasting impression, with its variety of subjects, ranging from the fleet, graceful figure of Atalanta, the exquisite, ageless, spiritual little Madonna and Child, strong, animate portrait busts and bas reliefs, to an amazing set of alphabet blocks, lovingly carved by the artist's sensitive hands for his little grandson, Nicholas, the child of Alastair and Valentine Porter Miller. There was more than variety of subject matter to delight the eye and stimulate the emotion — there was discrimination in the choice of media: pear wood, yellow poplar and linden, teak and walnut, cherry and mahogany; and above all, the skilled craftsmanship which gave to each figure its enchanting form and movement and imparted to each its warm patina.

In August of 1941 Alec Miller and his wife were paying one of their many visits to Carmel, having first been introduced to it by Mrs. Susan Porter in 1936, when this foremost among English sculptors was touring the United States, lecturing on sculpture and various aspects of art history under the auspices of the Institute of International Education. Now they have returned to make Carmel their home for the present, and in his Guadalupe street studio, sculptor Alec Miller, green-smocked, faintly ruddy of visage like the true Scotsman he is, with his thatch of snowy hair, his manner of quiet, gentle dignity, is hard at work on a figure of Joan of Arc, the head of Carrara marble, the bust of Oklahoma alabaster.

For relaxation from this important commission, he amuses himself with a series of literary bas relief portraits in pear wood. To date his gallery includes Hawthorne, Emerson, Meredith, Tennyson, Browning, Hardy, William Morris and Matthew Arnold, with Mark Twain and Ruskin to follow and the features of Walt Whitman just emerging under his carving tools.

Keeping affectionate watch over his labors, carved likenesses of his son Alastair and his daughter,

A Story in R.F.D. Mail Boxes Is One of Attractions of Water Color Show Drawing Good Attendance at Gallery

By PATRICIA CUNNINGHAM

The new show of water colors, pastels and sketches on view at the Art Gallery this month and until the middle of next month is no let down from the grand exhibit of oils in the larger gallery. Mrs. Elizabeth Cass, curator, reports that some of the things in the water color gallery are just as attention-getting as many of the paintings that we described last week.

One of the best reasons for this is Reed Dean's R.F.D. With a brightly humorous touch she paints a group of mail boxes at the cross roads. They suggest human counterparts, tall and short, fat and thin. It is not too difficult to imagine their lives and loves and petty troubles. In fact, two of the boxes lean coyly at each other and one easily anticipates a budding romance.

Florence Lockwood has hung a pastel of what could easily be the brightest, cutest baby of the season in spite of the extensive competition offered by the large war crop of babies.

A bit of drama is highlighted in Martin Gambee's Forest Fire. Anyone who has ever seen and felt the gripping terror of a mountain fire creeping toward home and treasures will feel similar disturbance on appraising this picture. And those addicted to the water color technique will take off their hats to the superb finesse and control of the washes. Mr. Gambee's other water color, Sentry, is an intriguing contrast. It is so very cold, both in subject and rendering.

There are various portrait techniques displayed, as in Catherine Van Dyke's soft pastel of a lovely lady and Celia Seymour's vivid crayon of chalk drawing of a child.

The scenes of local landscape include the view of Point Lobos by Kotch which would be a find for anyone looking for a characteristic reproduction of Monterey Cypress and rock formations. Then there are the two landscapes by Sam Colburn that fairly sparkle in the freshness of their color and pattern. They are composed so soundly that the observer can actually feel the space depicted and could easily imagine moving about in these bits of countryside. This is so rare a quality achieved in composition that it rates the highest admiration. It enables the art-

Jelich to Take Highway Patrol Job in November

It is likely that Officer E. M. Jelich, for three years a member of the Carmel Police Department, will take a position with the California Highway patrol about November 1, Chief Roy Fraties announced yesterday.

Jelich, who passed his examination for the state job some months ago received notice last week that there would be an opening for him shortly if he still wanted it. Jelich notified the department that he would accept the job which is likely to be open about November 1, in which case he will terminate his service with the Carmel police department October 15 for a two weeks' vacation before going to work for the State Highway Patrol.

He came here with his wife three years ago from San Luis Obispo where he had worked as civilian guard at a military construction project. Earlier he served as special police in San Jose following a three year course at San Jose police school.

PROCLAMATION

September 29, 1943

On behalf of National Fire Prevention Week, I have this day proclaimed the Week October 3, to October 9, 1943, CARMEL FIRE PREVENTION WEEK, calling upon our citizens to do their utmost to prevent needless destruction of life and property in our Community. This year it is most important that every citizen make it his business to clean up all possible hazards.

I therefore respectfully ask that the citizens of Carmel cooperate with the Fire Department and the Fire Marshal to bring our hazards down to an absolute minimum.

Report Roscelli Quitting Termed 'A Lot of Baloney'

A report last Friday in a Peninsula paper to the effect that John Roscelli was quitting his garbage collecting contract in Carmel was termed a "lot of baloney" by Mr. Roscelli when questioned by the Pine Cone Cymbal Wednesday night.

"We were having trouble keeping up with the work due to a man power shortage, but that is all taken care of now," he said. "I have no intention of giving up the Carmel garbage contract, never had, and if I did I'd certainly notify the City Council officially before I'd make any statement to a newspaper."

Powers Clan to Hold Reunion in House on Dunes

In Eight Bells, a cottage on the dunes rented for the purpose, the children and grand children of Frank H. Powers, one of Carmel's founders, are holding a reunion this week end.

Their mother will not be here. She has made her home for many years in Europe and at the outbreak of the war refused to leave. The last report received by her family through the Red Cross was that she was living in Rome. One of the daughters, Polly, will also be absent from the Carmel gathering. The wife of Dusmet Di Smours, Governor at Addis Abada during the Italian occupation, she is now confined at Mogadiscio on the sea coast of Italian East Africa with her husband and two sons, war prisoners of the British.

The occasion for the Carmel reunion is shore liberty of Lt. Gallatin Powers who has been on active duty in the Pacific. He comes here with his wife and daughter from San Francisco. His sister, Madeleine, Mrs. Nelson Miles Leoni, arrived here from Lemore with her husband last week and is expecting her two daughters with their husbands, Mrs. William Fassett and Mrs. Howard McGurrin, to arrive from San Francisco today. Her son, Seth Powers Ullman, at one time active in Carmel dramatic productions, now a corporal at Camp Sam Houston, Texas, cannot be present.

Lt. Powers will also see his sister-in-law, Mrs. Lucius Powers, of Fresno, who has been here

Fire Week Means Much to Carmel; All Co-operate

In other towns it rates with apple week and go to the dentist week, but in Carmel Fire Prevention Week, October 3 to 9, is an EVENT. The children at Sunset school get a ride on the fire engine. They go to the fire house in classes and droves and because it's all so exciting in an atmosphere of shiny red paint and polished metal, they drink in all that Fire Marshal Fred Leidig and Chief Vincent Torras have to say about how not to burn your house down, so that they come home and demand of their parents: "When did you get that chimney cleaned out last? Those floor lamp cords under the rug are fire hazards—so's that pile of newspapers in the closet under the stairs."

Adult Carmel, which loves its resin soaked pine trees and has no desire to see them perform as torches and Roman candles, takes Fire Prevention Week more seriously than other communities not so dangerously blessed with a

Scrap Iron Drive Starts Today; Police Watch Lot

A drive for heavy scrap iron starts today and lasts to October 15, Mayor P. A. McCreery announced yesterday. As no iron lighter than ¼ inch thick is wanted, the Mayor is doubtful if much will be available in Carmel, but expects quite a bit in the form of old farm equipment can be picked up in the Valley.

If anyone in Carmel has any scrap iron of that weight and of a size too large to bring to the Post Office he should phone the Civilian Defense office so one of the city trucks can call for it, but until such time as the truck calls, the scrap is not to be piled on the sidewalk or street but left on the premises where it is housed at present.

Copper, brass and aluminum are also wanted and these are to be brought to the Post Office lot. No rags, papers, leather or rubber is wanted at this time and is not to

Carmel Well Over War Bond Quota

Early in the week Carmel reached its Third War Bond quota of $380,000 with $30,000 over, and from the way bond buying continues it is estimated that the town will top its quota by $50,000 by the time the drive officially closes Saturday.

The door to door campaign that the chairman, Fredrick Godwin, was prepared to conduct if necessary, but ardently wished to avoid, never became a reality.

Intensive newspaper advertising sponsored by local business, and personal contact through telephoning and letter-writing was the means of publicizing the drive, and through the voluntary response in purchases at the banks and the post office, Carmel maintained its reputation of never failing to reach a quota set for it.

Late in the week Monterey was within 70 per cent of its quota, Pacific Grove 58.

ist to give the observer not only the picture of reality but the feel of it—a kind of kinetic contact.

Roy Martin's Desert Scene will be interesting to all those who have enjoyed his brilliant sketches of army life. These can still be seen in the small gallery and will always have value not only as beautiful watercolors but as vital documents of these times. Let's hope he makes a great many of them.

Martin Baer's small portrait group is nostalgic of the Paris that is gone, the city of Modigliani, L. Zborowsky and Soutine, who are in the portrait and bring to mind all of their fabulous associates. Anyone who knew that period and its people will long to have this little painting.

Very different in mood and effect are Alison Stilwell's two paintings in the Chinese style that she is noted for. The subjects—Dogwood, and a fragile Chinese Lady, are charmingly characteristic of the work that has won her so much popularity.

Instead of describing any more of the paintings, it would be better to urge the reader to make a point of visiting the gallery soon, because one visit will only be the first of many, once he sees the visual pleasure in store for him.

COSTLY GOLF GAME

Sixty days or $100 fine was the penalty levied by Judge George Ross yesterday when a nineteen year old youth, apprehended by the police, confessed that he was the "country club raffles" who had stolen a set of golf clubs from the basement of Sutton Place last week.

LT. COL. McGARR WOUNDED

Mrs. Harryette A. McGarr received word recently that her husband, Lieut. Colonel Lionel C. McGarr, on duty in the Mediterranean Theater of War, was wounded in action last month. She has made her home on Casanova and 11th for the past year and a half.

Grace Meade

Services were held Wednesday in Monterey for Mrs. Grace Meade, for twenty-five years a resident of Carmel and a charter member of the Carmel Woman's club. She was found dead in her home on Casanova street Tuesday morning.

Born in San Francisco in 1861, she came to Carmel after the death of her husband, Calvert Meade, and for a number of years was active in community affairs.

She is survived by her sister, Mrs. A. C. Schlesinger, her niece, Mrs. John H. Lathrop, both of Brooklyn, New York and her nephew, L. A. Schlesinger of Piedont.

With the passing Tuesday of Mrs. Calvert Meade, there disappears from Carmel one who has long been held in affectionate regard. For more than 20 years Mrs. Meade has lived in the community, greatly loving it and joyously keeping abreast with every improvement in the Village and keenly interested in its civic affairs.

Her instant sympathetic and genuine interest in everyone she met, and her remarkably generous nature endeared her to all.

Her many friends were most precious to her; their interests were her interests and to be of service to them in any way was her keenest joy.

Her gift of merry humor and her zest for life made her a welcome companion for those of any age.

But the valiant spirited way with which she led her life alone and the buoyant spirit of youth with which she met advancing age, made her a remarkable and outstanding character.

Mrs. Meade rarely spoke of her deep religious convictions but those nearest to her know that it was her keen sense of the supporting presence of God that carried her through the deeper waters of her experience and enabled her to go forward with joyous trust and confidence.

She was loved by many and was an inspiration to those who knew her best.—A.B.F.

THE CANDID CAMERA REPORTS THE NEWS OF STANDARD OF CALIFORNIA

Crystal Gazer

Peering through a quartz window into the combustion chamber of a running engine, this Standard of California technician can actually see how a new gasoline will behave in your motor. Missionary Group Hears Talk by Army Chaplain

Contrasting the duties of a chaplain in World War I and the present global conflict, Chaplain D. R. Brownell, speaking to the Carmel Missionary Society at Church of the Wayfarer on Tuesday, told of Harry Emerson Fosdick's experience.

Chaplain Fosdick was told by his commanding officer that his duties were to write to parents of soldiers who neglected to write, to get "the boys" out of entangling love affairs and to referee boxing matches on Friday nights; on the other hand, chaplains of the present war do have a lot of odd jobs that other officers haven't time for, but devote their full time to religious activities.

This country has had military chaplains since the time of the American Revolution. In the last war they were political appointees, but now a man must be an ordained minister and have the approval of his church for the position before the Army will appoint him chaplain, and that approval must be maintained throughout the period of service.

The Army recognizes that men need the help of religious leaders, that a vital religious faith makes better soldiers. Military success depends upon morale, which goes deeper than recreation and depends upon character, which springs from one's vital relation to his God.

Chaplain Brownell cited the example of Rear Admiral Byrd, who refused to take with him on his expeditions to the South Pole any but genuinely religious men, lest they "crack up" under stress of the grueling conditions of exploration in such climate.

No chaplain is ever drafted, said the speaker, all are volunteers. But he marches into battle with the men, armed only with the word of God, and soldiers take great pride in their duty to their chaplain. All religious faiths are represented, Protestant, Catholic, Jew, and the aim is to have one chaplain to every 1200 soldiers. Each one must hold a service every Sunday, and when assigned to a unit, must be able to hold a general service acceptable to those not of his faith, or else call in a civilian minister to conduct such

From Tar to Trees Street Department Goes Its Quiet Way

Though there are only four instead of the normal eight on the street department payroll, work of maintenance of Carmel streets is moving along according to schedule though no new construction or improvements are contemplated, Street Commissioner Fred Mylar said this week.

The force has wound up the work of calking with tar the joints in the paved streets and is now trimming trees and shrubs that screen hazardous curves and taking out two trees at Fourth and Dolores that have been condemned by the city council.

Several days a week the street department force is lent to the Sanitary Board to help with the heavy work and repairs at the reduction plant.

Alexander, Anderson On Program for MAC Sunday Concert

An interesting and varied program is promised for the members and friends of the Carmel Musical Art club on Sunday, October 3, at 3 p.m. in the music room of the high school.

Artists appearing are Mrs. Edith Anderson and Nicolai Alexander, with Miss Gladys Steele of San Francisco as accompanist for both.

Three groups of songs will be presented by Mrs. Anderson, whose silvery soprano voice with its bell-like quality and ample tone invariably delights the Carmel audience, together with her pleasing personality and wide emotional appeal.

Nicolai Alexander is a gifted young baritone, born in America of Russian parentage, who brings to his art a rich heritage of tradition. His voice is warmly resonant, his interpretation and diction excellent; his repertoire ranges from the classics and grand opera to ballands and selections from light opera and musical comedy. Among the three groups of songs in which he will be heard on Sunday will be included a comprehensive group of Russian folk songs, enhanced by his own guitar accompaniment and augmented in their appeal by his striking Russian costume.

A newcomer to Carmel audiences, Mr. Alexander has sung frequently over the Columbia Broadcasting network, and in 1943 won the highest rating of male entrants in the California state contest of the National Federation of musical clubs.

throughout the summer.

Not only are those immediately concerned interested in the gathering of the Powers clan, but most of Old Carmel is enjoying meeting members of the family that had so great an influence in forming the character of the town.

Frank H. Powers, the father, San Francisco attorney, came here in 1900, and with his artist wife, made the home on the dunes on Old El Camino Real, furnished with antique Spanish treasures, a gathering place for Charles Warren Stoddard, Geraldine Bonner, Charles Rollo Peters, Maynard Dixon, George Sterling, William Ritschel, until he established a home of his own in Carmel, used Mrs. Powers' studio for his painting.

Powers was a leader not only in attracting to the infant village people of literary and artistic genius, but had a large part in establishing the attitude that future residents were to take toward preserving the natural beauty of the environment, toward encouraging artistic and literary expression, toward stimulating the fine musical and dramatic productions that were so vital a part in the existence of early Carmel.

Following his death, his wife made her home in Europe, but though his children have spent much time in traveling and for varying periods have lived abroad, they return again and again for "reunion in Carmel."

FROM A SOLDIER'S LETTERS ....

V.

Still "Hell's Annex": "We moved again but it was still ON the island, not off. It looks as if Hell's Annex will be our home for a little longer. I now hope we do stay here for a while longer, as I have no desire to go up the street to the 'Main Drag' as to which the newspapers have not misled you. (Land action at Munda and Vella Lavella) . . . No news that I can write; no room for opinions (mine rarely get past the censor anyhow) and no reliable rumors but plenty of room left to send you all my love."

Rumors, rumors. "No letter from you since I last wrote, but then the mail has been held up for some unknown reason so I expect several soon. Rumors are flying thick and fast but none stand up under strict scrutiny. We are, according to army slang, sweating out 'The Main Drag' as well as a trip to civilization. Enough of that—I'm treading on thin ice with the censor . . . The war news on all fronts looks very encouraging, and I am inclined to feel somewhat optimistic. Last night I saw motion pictures of the battle of Egypt and Libya. One of the boys said 'I've seen enough already to know that the British can really fight.' It really was a spectacular drive. . . . There isn't much more that I can say, except that I am in fair health, so I will not attempt another page. Working and waiting—that's about the story. . . . P. S. Dad, send me that address in Auckland, New Zealand via next mail." (!)

Change pending, but what? "Just time for a quick V - mail before chow. Busy working most of the day and after chow a USO show and movie will occupy my time till taps. We don't have taps here, but we do go to bed. Yesterday your airmail letter of July 16th reached me. It was most welcome after a short dry spell. The clippings were greatly enjoyed also. Your V-mail of July 11 arrived today (July 27) and thanks to Dad's use of the typewriter contained plenty of news.

"No change in the situation here but a change is pending, for better or for worse, a question only time will tell. I hope you are praying for a quick conclusion to the 'Main Drag' affair. By the way, will you send me by return mail that address in Auckland, N. Z. Might be able to use it some day. . . . And now I pass the pen back to you, but will pick it up again Sunday."

Action! (Not Sunday, but Friday). "I hope I have time to finish this—if not I have a short note all ready to go with the money order I am sending. (Memory of looting during former tour of action?) Just hold this money till you hear from me, and I hope that will be soon. However, you will not hear from me Sunday, and I do not know how soon you will hear from me again. The going is going to be plenty tough the next week or two but by that time I pray I will be able to write you that I am safe and OK. Please do not worry as I'll probably be writing that letter as this one reaches you. You will both be in my every thought, and it is a swell feeling to have with me your love and faith. This I promise you —I will do my best."

(The "week or two" went by; three weeks, four weeks, with no word of any sort. Still in one way, no news was good news, then, exactly five weeks from receipt of the above came V-mail.)

The Main Drag Cleaned Up: "We have just been issued one V-mail per man, and of course I am using mine to let you know that I am safe and still on my feet. It has been just a month since I last wrote you, and during that month I have been through H-ll. And I mean the Main Drag itself. The going has been tough, with plenty of action, but those of us that were there at the finish have a feeling of a job well done."

Just arrived, brand new and something to sing about, a new shipment of handsome record cabinets at LIAL'S MUSIC SHOP in Monterey . . . Music worshippers, especially those who already have the Magnovox Contemporary Phonograph Radio Combination should drop in and look them over . . . since they are designed to match and complement the Magnovox. These stunning modern cabinets come in either Mahogony or Walnut finish with some priced as low as $19.75 and on up. Really, sizes and prices to match both your taste and budget. Some might prefer to house their music in one of the beautiful blonde cases . . . whatever your preference, blonde or brunette, you'll almost have to see them to believe them, and confidentially your records will just start humming tunes of joy right out loud when they hear that you're considering . . . for after all, do they deserve to be stacked up on the floor all the rest of their lives?

This is your invitation to visit LIAL'S and see the new arrivals . . . whenever you can.

P. S. Margaret Lial just called in with a Real News Flash . . . a large but limited shipment of swing just came in, recordings by Blue Notes, Jazz Man, Beacon and Commodore . . as any connoisseur can tell you—in demand, lowdown and CLASSIC.

John Chapel to Speak on Russia For Woman's Club

Mrs. Alton Walker entertained the Board of Directors of the Carmel Woman's club this week at her home Sea Mist, in Pebble Beach. The year's program, as presented by the chairmen of the various sections, promises to be interesting and educational. The membership committee extends a cordial invitation to the women of Carmel who might be interested in becoming members of the club. Those desiring to affiliate may call the membership chairman, Miss Flora Hartwell, 876J.

Members enjoying tea at the close of the business meeting were the fourteen directors appointed for the ensuing year: Mrs. Helen Clark Cranston, president, assisted by Miss Flora Hartwell, vice president and membership chairman; Mrs. William Halyard, recording secretary; Miss Amy Campbell, treasurer; Miss Helen Baldwin, director-at-large; Mrs. Alton Walker, program; Miss Sophie Baldwin, hospitality; Miss Agnes Knight, revision; Mrs. E. A. Fraser and Mrs. Winslow Conn, house committee; Mrs. Kathryn Lansdowne, press; Mrs. D. E. Nixon, books; Miss Frances Hartwell, librarian.

On Monday, October 4 at 2:30 p.m., in its new meeting place, Pine Inn, the club is anticipating the pleasure of hearing John K. Chapel, author, lecturer and world traveler, on Russia, Past and Present. Mr. Chapel is related to and has been associated with national figures in Russia, Denmark, Latvia and Finland, and served in the army of his native Russia before coming to America. Later he enlisted in the U. S. Army. From his wealth of experience he will bring to his audience an intelligent analysis of current affairs. Mr. Chapel will include a review of his past predictions which have come true and forecasts of the future.

Kip Silvey Office Headquarters for War Chest Drive

With only two weeks remaining before opening guns are fired in the Community and War Chest drive on the Monterey peninsula and throughout the entire nation, Carmel campaign leaders are rushing plans for an all-out participation on the part of this community and surrounding area in the campaign.

Majority of the canvassing will be done by a small army of women volunteers now being enrolled under the leadership of Mrs. Frances Hudgins, chairman of the women's group. Assisting her in planning details are Mrs. James Doud, Helene Vye, Kathleen Prewett, Mrs. Hugh Comstock, Mrs. Elizabeth Goodrich and Mrs. C. W. Laugenour. Other names will be added later.

Campaign headquarters were opened this week in the building adjacent to the Carmel Investment Co. on Ocean avenue with Dorothea Bassett as office manager. Mayor P. A. McCreery with Lloyd Weer as assistant is in general charge of the Carmel phase of the drive.

Arthur Wilhoit

Death came on the morning of Wednesday, September 29, in the Stanford University Hospital, Palo Alto, to Arthur Wilhoit, aged 75, following a month's illness.

A native of Stockton, California, and member of a pioneer family of that city, Arthur Wilhoit retired about seven years ago from the banking business there and came to make his home in Carmel, on Casanova street between Seventh and Eighth. He was known and loved by a wide circle of friends here, among them George Marion, whose close friendship dated from their early boyhood in Stockton.

He is survived by a brother, Mr. Jean Wilhoit of Stockton, a sister, Mrs. Albert E. Hodgkins and a half-sister, Mrs. Sidney, both of Carmel Highlands and Stockton. His daughter, Mrs. Coulter McKeever, lives in San Mateo. Two granddaughters and a great granddaughter also survive.

And It Could Happen Here

Bill Gould, editor of the Pacific Grove Tide, was on the saddle sore end of an extensive riding last week owing to his oversight in allowing The Tide date lines to read November 17 instead of September 17. One of his subscribers wrote in asking him where she could get a turkey seeing as how Thanksgiving had crept up on her so suddenly.

Careless Citizens Cause Three Fires In Carmel Area

Both the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department and the State Forestry truck from the station on Carmel hill were called out last week to extinguish minor blazes.

Wednesday night the Carmel volunteers answered a call at the Delman cottage on Twelfth and Carmelo to put out a fence fire caused by dumping hot ashes in the back yard.

The state forestry department extinguished a road side fire on San Mateo road Wednesday morning and in Hatton Fields Monday noon. Cause in all three cases was attributed to carelessness.

June Sanders Gives Pleasing Concert At Forest Hills

By DAVID MARRS

Last Sunday, Sept. 26, a series of musicales was initiated by the Forest Hills school in its spacious hall as it presented Miss June Sanders, pianist. Large windows and French doors letting in sunshine, a tiny stage and grand piano, a balcony box at the side of the room, were among the things which made the setting ideal for informal musicales. One of the teachers of the school, Miss Anne Douglas, introduced the artist of the afternoon.

The program which followed was varied and was heightened by comments before each number by the artist. There is something contagious about the enthusiasm Miss Sanders has for music. She loves every piece she plays and the audience tends to also. It was unfortunate however, that the piano was not up to concert standard.

Many effects were lost and tone control was uneven. Of particular interest in the program were the Chopin Nocturne in F sharp and the Funeral March, both done with deep feeling. The Debussy group, ending with the cleverly managed Golliwog's "Cake Walk," led to the final number, the brilliant Waltz by Levitzki.

Gen. and Mrs. Schull On Way Home After Release from Duty

The War Department recently announced the release on September 30, from further active duty of Brigadier General H. W. Schull who has been on duty in the office of the Chief of Ordnance, Washington, D. C., since our entry in the second World War.

General Schull, a recipient of the Distinguished Service Medal for his services in the first World War, had retired from active duty after forty years service in 1938. He and Mrs. Schull established a home in Carmel at the corner of 9th and Carmelo streets. Immediately after Pearl Harbor he offered his services and was recalled to active duty. He now retires for a second time, this time for age.

In a letter to General Schull advising him of his prospective retirement, Major General L. H. Campbell, Chief of Ordnance, U. S. Army, expressed himself as follows: "It is unnecessary for me to comment upon your long and splendid career in the Ordnance Department. Your record stands for itself, but I must take this opportunity to express my real appreciation for the manner in which you have shouldered your load and carried on during the period I have been steering the Ordnance ship. If there was any action on my part that could delay this separation from active service I would certainly take it."

General and Mrs. Schull will return to Carmel shortly to occupy their home. They will be accompanied by their daughter-in-law, Mrs. H. W. Schull, Jr., and her two children. Their son, Colonel H. W. Schull, Jr., Corps of Engineers, is on duty with the Army Air Force in the Asiatic Theater.

Another son, Lt. Colonel Edson Schull, commands a battalion of tanks and is on duty with the Armored Forces in the North African Theater where he has been since the invasion in November 1942.

Hosei Recovering From Wounds Is Back in Service

Staff Sgt. Herman Hoei, Carmel, has been assigned to the 65th Replacement Battalion at the Field Artillery Replacement Training Center, Camp Roberts, following his recovery from bayonet wounds suffered during the American attack on Attu.

His wife, the former Verna Louise Williams, whom he married Nov. 21, 1942, lives at San Carlos and Fourth.

Enlisting June 21, 1937, he was trained at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and spent two years at Schofield Barracks, Honolulu, which he left on the last boat to the United States before Pearl Harbor.

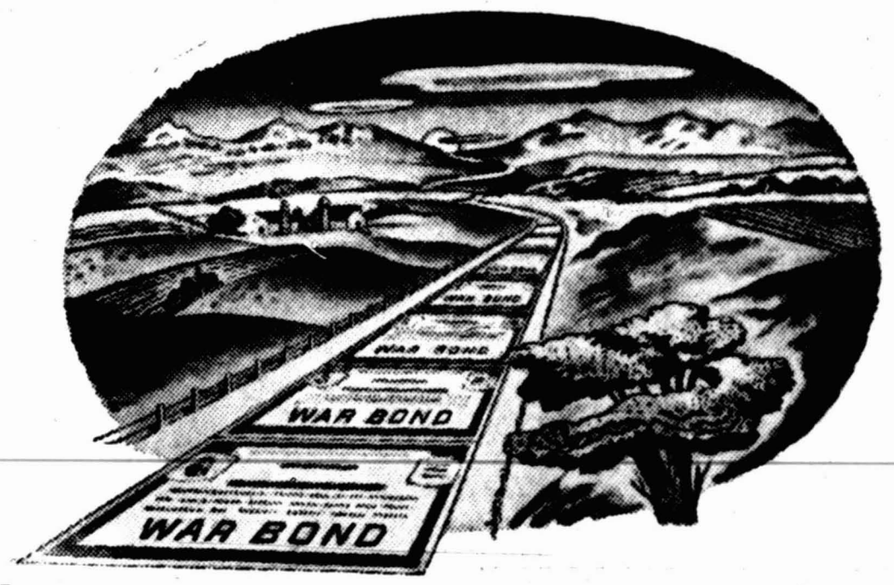
After further training at Fort Ord and Camp San Luis Obispo, he was a platoon sergeant in a weapons platoon which landed at Massacre Bay. Wounded in a night bayonet fight, he suffered a battered hand besides the bayonet wound. He recovered at a west coast hospital.

SAN DIEGO GUESTS

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Montgomery and their daughter, Joan, of San Diego, spent the past weekend as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Leard at their Rancho Mar Monte home.

Bardarson Fund Invested in War Savings Bonds

The trustees of the Otto W. Bardarson Scholarship Fund met on Tuesday evening at Sunset library and unanimously decided to invest $1,100.00 of the fund in U. S. Savings Bonds, Series F. This will buy fifteen $100.00 bonds. The Trustees already hold two $25.00 bonds in Series F, which were given by a contributor to the fund at a cost of $18.50 each and favor this form of contribution as serving the double purpose of helping both the fund and the War Loan drives.



HIGHWAY to VICTORY

and your highway to a better future

The road to Victory must be paved with War Bonds. The purchase of bonds will help win the war and assure a sound post-war economy. Every dollar you put into War Bonds does three vital jobs:

1. It helps shorten the war and thus saves American lives.
2. It protects your future as an investment.
3. It prevents inflation now and after the war.

Our Government needs $15 Billion from War Bonds this month to "back the attack." Your share, every American's share, is at least one extra $100 Bond.

Back the attack—Buy an extra $100 War Bond this month!

A VAGRANT MIND ON THE LOOSE

By EDWARD KUSTER

Tax reports due Uncle Sam throughout the years are in good order. My place in the age brackets is such that even the grim-visaged War Department, looking hungrily about for what is classically termed "fresh cannon fodder," pauses with a certain outward show of deference to my mouse-grey poll and definitely passes me by. It seems that within decent limits, shadowy though they be, I may take my mental fun where, when and IF I can find it in these cock-eyed times of my declining years.

At the moment the nearest subject for Rabelaisian mirth would seem to be last week's solemn and pontifical news item that a Victory ship has been launched in San Francisco Bay bearing the name of the poet, George Sterling.

George Sterling! Obviously they were thinking of his youthful bibulous rhapsodies over (pre-earthquake) San Francisco — more specifically perhaps, of his famous and rather fatuous designation of the City by the Golden Gate as "the cool grey City of Love." Me, O My!

Sterling died in the middle nineteen twenties. Off and on during his last years he spent much time here in Carmel, where he had friends whom he genuinely loved—and he certainly did NOT the stuffed shirts and art dabblers within the Bohemian Club of San Francisco who "patronized" and wined the poet to his tragic death.

George Sterling! His cool grey City of Love is grown into something very different in these days, with scores of war plants and their plentiful easy money lying just across the Bay bridge. A walk up and down Market street after dark would send the urbane and fastidious George, or for that matter any other self-respecting ghost, scampering back into his urn in a hurry.

I see I have not as yet pointed out any incongruity that might be involved in naming a Victory ship after Sterling. Let me commend the curious reader, if any there be, to the flaming prose passage, published posthumously, wherein among other things he charges us as a people with being "quick to enthrone each jitney Messiah and as quick with all possible cruelty to cut him down," (my Democratic friends might heed this as a bit of prophecy, perhaps!) But the peak and summit of Sterling's savage attack upon us is found, I think, in the following description of his fellow-Americans, " . . . driven like sheep by the vast and complacent powers that hold them in unrealized bondage."

It is not unlikely that I am wholly mistaken about George's reaction, had he lived till now, to last week's ship christening—for he was as frail and human as they come. It would take a stronger man—an Ambrose Bierce, for instance (he, too, a San Franciscan turned sour)—to spurn the honor of having his monicker painted on the prow of a fine ship, even though loaded to the rails with homicidal TNT.

* * * *

Wendell Willkie's "One World" is an impressive affair. The most striking passage, to my mind, isn't in the book proper at all, but in the introduction. He says there, "Today because of military and other (italics mine—EGK) censorships, America is like a beleaguered city that lives within high walls through which there passes only an occasional courier to tell us what is happening outside. I have been outside that wall. And I have found that nothing outside is exactly what it seems to those within."

As I say, the book is impressive. I would perhaps have more confidence in Mr. Willkie if I could forget the crack he made shortly after the last Presidential campaign, whereby he "laffed off" the charges of deceit and incompetency he had hurled at the New Deal administration and confessed that it had only been "campaign talk." Isn't there a new campaign under way at this very moment? How much of "One World" does Mr. Willkie propose to stand by from hell to breakfast?

* * * *

There are a lot of fine ideas besides Mr. Willkie's floating about the world in a disembodied sort of way. It isn't the noble ideas that break down in the crises that put them to test, but the human standard - bearers who crumple up under mass opposition, from weaknesses of moral fibre. Examine these sentiments, for example: " . . . It must be a peace without victory. . . . Victory would mean peace forced upon the loser, a victor's terms imposed upon the vanquished. It would be accepted in humiliation, under duress, at an intolerable sacrifice. The terms of peace would rest only upon quicksand. Only a peace between equals can last. Any peace which does not recognize and accept this principle will inevitably be upset."

The above words, applauded at the time, January 22, 1917, by all the country except the munitions industries, were those of Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States. A few months later, after we had entered what we now call the First World War (then we called it the Last) the above words were swept into the dust-bin as so much professorial twaddle. Brought out again by President Wilson in the form of the "Fourteen Points," on the faith of which the Central Powers surrendered and laid down their arms, they were finally repudiated and thrown out of the window by "Tiger" Clemenceau and the completely victorious Allies at Versailles.

Could there by any remote possibility be truth in Woodrow Wilson's words after all?

* * * *

When this Second (and of course this time the last) World War is done, and the smoke has cleared away, and the peace table has been set, I recommend that every delegate be required to carry under his arm, and to memorize, the brilliant "Shall It Be Again?" of our fellow-townsman, John Kenneth Turner, published in 1922.

* * * *

The moviegoers who saw and laughed at Cary Grant bulking large in round wooden tub set down in the middle of the room in "The Howards of Virginia" may be surprised to know that in "The Gentleman's Assistant," first published as late as 1860, the following rules are laid down for taking a bath:

"The best bath for general purposes, and one which can do little harm, and almost always some good, is a sponge bath. It should consist of a large, flat metal basin, some four feet in diameter, filled with cold water. A large, coarse sponge—the coarser the better—and a few Turkish towels complete the 'properties.' The water should be plentiful and fresh, that is, brought up a little before the bath is to be used —not placed overnight in the bedroom.

"The sponge being nearly a foot in length, and six inches broad, must be allowed to fill completely with water, and the part of the body which should first be attacked is the stomach. It is there that the most heat has collected during the night. The head should be next soused. The use of soap in the bath is an open question. I confess a preference for a rough towel, or a hair glove."

Now I ask you!

* * * *

And lastly, lest we forget:

"Oh wad some Pow'r the giftie gie us
To see oursels as ithers see us!
It wad frae mony a blunder free us,
And foolish notion."

God bless us, every one.

POETRY

THE UNRETIRED

How could we rest when many eyes were burning,
Swept by the fair winds, darkened by the sun?
How could we stay beside the pleasant poplars
And watch the burdened marching of the young?

A while we thought our hearts would let us linger,
Beneath the cool negation of the leaves,
But soon we found that shade had turned to shadow,
That lips had tightened, underneath the trees,
—And we went out once more among the marchers,
To match our steps with these!

—KATHRYNE E. SCOVILLE.

WINTER WEALTH

The trees, once robed, are bare or ragged now;
And each denuded bough
Is flooded with a lonely light.
Gone is the bright
Warm richness of October.
The brooding heart is sober,
Thinking of ten thousand flowers laid low,
Ready for the triumph of the snow.
But on my terrace, myrtle leaves are seen,
Like the wall-ivy, rich and green;
The dazzling wonder of my holly-tree
Brings summer back to me;
And proud below the little garden hill,
The barberry wears her glowing rubies still.

—CHARLES BALLARD.

EXILED CALIFORNIAN

I long for canyons after winter rains
When wakened waterfalls have filled with sound
The tree-lined corridors of mossy ground,
When on the evening hills the sunlight wanes.
I long for openness of waving plains,
Where tides of seeding grasses whirl around
Wild flames of poppies lighting every mound
Against a silver sky of tangled manes!

O town of empty trees and rusty snow,
How can I look upon your sooty street
Again this year and force myself to know
My country's need requires that I must meet
This spring once more in cold and lonely woe?—
The hours of exile drag with crippled feet!

—MARCUS Z. LYTLE.

Pine Cone Gets a Book from Mr. Jordan And Is Very Pleased

The Pine Cone is in receipt of a neat, mustard - colored, cloth-bound volume entitled, Roster, Public Officials of California, compiled by Frank M. Jordan, Secretary of State.

Whether or not it will excite the qualified electorate at large is problematic, but newspaper offices welcome a compact book that contains the information a person is apt to need at any moment and generally in a hurry: such as how to spell the name of the mayor of Salinas when he's among those present at a dedication of something new at Fort Ord.

No village is so microscopic as to be passed over. Even we are included, listed in full dignity as "the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea (County of Monterey), Sixth class city. Population 2,837. Council meets first Wednesday of month. Mayor: P. A. McCreery." Follows a list of Carmel city councilmen and city officials. After Auditor, Purchasing Agent, Engineer and Health Officer are no names. But a number of other cities of the sixth class do not have auditors, purchasing agents, engineers and health officers so apparently there is no need for Carmel to be apologetic.

Listed are councilmen: Fred J. Mylar, Frederick M. Godwin, Bernard Rowntree, Leslie L. Dewar; Clerk, Peter Mawdsley; Attorney, Peter J. Ferrante; Police Chief, Roy Fraties; Fire Chief, Vincent A. Torras; Treasurer, Harry C. Hilbert; Assessor, Peter Mawdsley; Street Superintendent, William L. Askew; Electrical Inspector and Building Inspector, Floyd Adams; Judge, George P. Ross; Executive Officer of Defense Council, P. A. McCreery.

In the counties section Monterey has a full list of officials, supervisors, fourteen justices of the peace and fourteen constables.

If one wishes to roam farther afield than the home county, it's possible to find out who is governor of the state, how to spell the name of the assemblyman from Contra Costa county (Sawallish) and the names of the members of the Race Relations and Poultry Improvement commissions.

"Jennie" Lead to Commute Between School and Theater

"Jennie, Jewel of the West," current melodrama with olio now playing at the First Theater, Monterey, every Saturday and Sunday night, becomes more popular with each weekend run. Last week patrons overflowed onto the stairway and begged for standing room, with more than a hundred turned away for the two nights. Reservations are coming in for two and three weeks ahead, showing that the First Theater has an established and recognized place in the entertainment world.

Margaret Hartigan, who is playing the title role of "Jennie," will soon return to San Jose State College, but Margaret, one of the most enthusiastic Troupers of the Gold Coast, declares that she is going to arrange her courses so that she can continue to play the part, coming down each weekend, and returning to her first class at 11:00 a.m. on Monday mornings.

Monterey Adult School Opens on Monday, October 11

Registrations for a great variety of classes are being made at the Monterey Adult School previous to the fall opening on October 11. A program of anticipated classes is available at the Adult School office by calling Monterey 3148, Ext. 6.

Celebrated speakers are to assure a popular Forum series running through the fall and spring. Registration for this particular class is one dollar for ten lectures. Registration for all other classes is free.

On June 30, 1943, the Monterey Adult School completed its most successful year. With the enthusiasm shown in registrations, both in the regular classes and in the evening Forum, the year of 1943-44 should be an equally successful year for the Monterey Adult School.

WACS to Recruit On the Beach This Saturday and Sunday

The WACS do not scorn to recruit by the waves. Under a colorful beach umbrella loaned by Mrs. Rama Stearns, Sgt. Thad McCarty, army recruiting officer for the WACS and aviation cadets, will preside over an information and registration booth on Carmel beach all day Saturday and Sunday afternoon.

The WAC recruiting drive that was to be launched with a special WAC week here Oct. 11 to 16, is to begin ahead of schedule because a national drive opening this week necessitates postponing indefinitely the WAC week planned for the Monterey Peninsula, according to a letter received yesterday by Lt. Elizabeth B. Henley.

Men you've never even met Are fighting for you now!

Americans, all—millions of them!

The son of the tailor down at the corner . . . the young brother of the banker . . . the nephew of the gas-station man . . . the farm boy from Iowa . . . the college boy from Park Avenue.

Fighting, all of them—for us. That's Democracy in action. Because all Americans were "created free and equal" every American has an equal duty to perform.

And that's where WE come in. We've got to back up those boys. We've got to see that they get the stuff to fight with. Planes . . . tanks . . . guns . . . bullets . . . bombs . . . more of them than the world has ever seen before.

Every payday we've got to save—put 10 percent of our pay in War Bonds. Millions of other Americans are doing it. "Sacrifice," you say? As great a sacrifice as the boys made at Bataan or Corregidor! As great a sacrifice as a flier made who deliberately gave his life to bomb a Jap plane carrier!

Nothing* we can do can ever equal what these men have already done!

Mind you, we're not even asked to give this money. Every time we save $18.75 we get a War Bond worth $25 in 10 years.

That's why we're not looking for excuses, we Americans. We're not looking for excuses from lending money, when other Americans are giving their lives!

DO YOU KNOW?

When you buy WAR BONDS, you're saving, not giving! Series E WAR BONDS are worth 33⅓ percent more in 10 years! You get $4 for every $3 you invest!

These BONDS, when held to maturity (10 years), yield 2.9 percent per year on your investment, compounded semiannually!

Joining a Pay-Roll Savings Plan makes saving easy!

Joining your bank's Victory Club (it works like any Thrift or Christmas Club) is a convenient way to save for War Bonds for those who aren't members of a Pay-Roll Savings Plan.

You can have enough money to do a lot of things you'd like to do, and to buy the many things you'll need after the war is over, if you save enough in War Bonds every payday NOW!

You can start buying WAR BONDS by buying War Stamps for as little as 10 cents.

SUNSET SCHOOL NOTES

The Sailor

I'm a sailor so strong and bold
I tell some tales which are very old.
I tell tales of the Northern Sea
And sometimes I tell a tale about me.

I've been in wars when my boat was hit
And all the sailors fell in a fit.
I got on a plank and floated away
Without food or water day after day.

A boat picked me up and brought me back home,
So that is my story of shipwreck and foam. — Antony Daniels, Grade 6.

Some Joke

It was our second class meeting and our newly elected officers were in charge for the first time. President Russel Wolters said, "Will the secretary please read the minutes?" The secretary looked up at the clock! — Howard Veit, Grade 5.

Long, Long Ago

To cave men of the early day
Adventures came in every way.
At night the animals did whine and howl—
The wooly mammoth and the wide-eyed owl.
They killed the deer and ate them raw,
For in those days that was the law.—Joan Sanders, Grade 6.

The Red Cross

Red Cross work is keeping us busy
Making Christmas trees 'til we're dizzy.
They are for our soldier boys
Who are away and miss our Christmas joy.
So we hope that we are helping
With these trees that we are making.
—Barbara Jean Templin, Grade 6.

Ginger

Ginger is my kitten. He followed me to school. He drank the water out of a bowl of flowers. We gave him some milk. Then he curled up in the window and went to sleep.—Sally Garlick, Grade 1.

This summer we went to Big Sur. We stayed there five days. We went swimming just about all the time. We had to cook on a stone stove. When night came we slept in our sleeping bags. Our milk got sour soon, so we drank our milk the first two days. We had a lot of fun. — Janet Gorman, Grade 3.

Woo! Woo!

Sunday I was coming from the show. I was just about in front of the school when I saw Marlene Dietrich. I was so surprised I just about ran into a telephone post! —Kent Blanche, Grade 5.

My name is Nancy. I used to live in Portland but I like Carmel best. In the summer I went to my grandmother's. She has a pretty garden and a pond with fish in it. She has pretty flowers in her garden.—Nancy Steffanoff, Grade 3.

Poor Myrtle!

A girl in our room went away and she just happened to have a turtle named Myrtle. She just happened to give the turtle to the class to keep. The turtle just happened to run away! Now it just happens that we can't find the turtle! Poor Myrtle! — Carol Petty, Grade 5.

Sports

Sports at Sunset School stepped into full swing with the choosing of teams for intra-mural games. The captains elected were: Dick Gargiulo, Dick Sumners, Charles Kane and Arthur Harber. Mrs. Uzzell did a fine job of organizing the fifth, sixth and seventh grades. Referees have been chosen from the 8th grade boys at the high school.

The league games for 7th grade in physical education have already started, headed by Coach Rudd. The first game results were: Skunks, 6, Bardoes, 0. The Yanks and Dodgers were deadlocked in a scoreless tie.—Billy Ford, Sports Editor, Sunset School.

Our class is helping the Red Cross. We are making Christmas trees for table decoration. Our class has a choice of other work. We may choose making or bringing washcloths to take to the hospitals. We could make ash trays out of wood, shells, bottle tops and so on. Some like the idea of making flower containers out of small cans. We could get cross word puzzles out of newspapers to paste on cards. The solution would be on the back. Some of the things we are making also go to the soldier boys across the sea who are fighting to keep our country free. Our Red Cross leader is Miss Spayd. — Joan Budd, Grade 6.

My Turtle

About two years ago I had a turtle. His name was Skippy. He was a very cute turtle, and he was a very adventurous one.

One day I took Skippy and the other turtle that was in the bowl out in the back yard. I left them in the bowl and went in the house. When I came back to bring them in, Skippy was gone! We were very unhappy about it.

One Easter morning we went for a drive. When we came back we found Skippy in the bowl on the front porch. The boy next door said he had found Skippy up the road on a hill in front of a boarding house (about a half mile away from our house!) He had crossed a busy street and climbed a steep hill.

But Skippy had a very sad ending. About a month after we found him we let him out on the floor and forgot to watch him. Mother couldn't find him. She opened the door one day and Skippy was crushed by the door! —Jacqueline Wheeler, Grade 5.

A Snake!

My niece and I went for a walk in an empty field, and we came upon a big snake! I didn't know what it was but I have a hunch it was a gopher snake. It was about four or five inches around and it was wrapped up three times.

I went to tell my sister to come and look at it but it was gone when we got there. I had almost touched it because I thought it was dead. — La Rene McEntire, Grade 5.

My Vacation

When school was out I told my mother I was going to get a G-I haircut. I went to the barber shop and had it clipped with an electric razor. I went home and scared my mother.

Two days after that I went to work in a store and worked for three weeks. Then they found out I had to have a social security number to work in the store. I didn't have one so I had to quit. Then I picked prunes for a few days. After that I played most of the time. Once in a while I would mow the lawn.

On Sept. 1 I moved here and played at home and on the beach until I started to school.—Douglas Browe, Grade 3.

ART DISCUSSION & PAINTING
By Patricia Cunningham, Teacher

So far, the Discussion Group has investigated the reasons for the existence of the arts, distinguished their various categories, discussed the sort of subject matter and expression proper to each, and how the nature and function of the artist can be best defined.

Everyone joins in the discussion, and exception can be taken to any statement or question at any time. By this method we establish an accord between the various personalities and thinking methods of those in the class—and the results are greatly enjoyable and profitable to everyone joining in.

The Sketch (or Painting) Class is made up of students and artists of varying degrees of knowledge and ability. Hence instruction has to be largely individual. There is general class instruction in the principles of figure construction, which the new pupils need, and the more advanced ones like to review.

Art Discussion Class, Carmel Art Gallery, Mondays at 3:30.

Sketching and Painting, Sunset School, Room 15, Tuesday and Thursday at 3:30.

NEW VON TEMPSKI BOOK

Armine von Tempski (Mrs. Alfred Ball) writes from her home in Manhattan Beach, where her husband holds an important post with Douglas Aircraft, that she has just completed Bright Spurs, a new juvenile, between canters about the countryside on her horse, Big Shot, whose movie career she interrupted by purchasing him recently from one of the Hollywood film colony. Now she has embarked on a sequel to Born in Paradise, to be entitled Date with Adventure.

Treasure Trove for Bargain Prices at "Bundles" Shop

Bargain seekers often may find a treasure trove at the Bundles where many articles of intrinsic worth are offered at nominal cost, some at not even a tithe of their value. This is possible because of donations made by local families who in this manner help along the war effort. Proceeds of the sale become available for the purchase of yarn which in turn is issued to volunteer knitters of sweaters, helmets and gloves. These articles go to our gallant bluejackets serving in the northern regions, maintaining lonely vigils amidst wintry blasts.

Book lovers may find sets of Dickens and Thackeray, special editions, at prices bearing little relation to original cost.—W.E.P.

Your Government asks your COOPERATION in the CONSERVATION of ELECTRICITY and GAS

Read these excerpts from a letter addressed to Utilities and Their Customers by J. A. Krug, Director, Office of War Utilities.

The War Production Board has proclaimed that maximum war production requires the greatest possible conservation of manpower, transportation, fuel, equipment, and critical materials such as copper, steel, tungsten, and many others—much greater than has been heretofore accomplished.

We cannot exert maximum force against our enemies if waste on the home front is tolerated.

In the electric utility industry, the installed generating capacity, together with capacity under construction, is ample to meet all foreseeable electric needs. But it is essential to save the use of electricity wherever possible so as to reduce, directly or indirectly, the demands for materials, fuel, transportation and manpower.

The desired result will be obtained through the full cooperation of millions of people in the conservation program. With everyone contributing, the effect will be tremendous in hastening the day of Victory.

By pledging ourselves to the following platform, this company, its 12,000 employees and its 1,700,000 customers can cooperate as partners in the Conservation Program:

1. We will WASTE NOT so that our fighting men will WANT NOT.
2. We will watch to prevent waste of gas and electricity as we watch a leaking faucet.
3. We will buy only those home appliances we need and take care of those we own.
4. We will put every possible dollar of savings into War Bonds and Stamps.

Gas and Electricity are Vital in War Production—do not waste them!

Charles Conrad a Visitor

Petty Officer (3rd Cl.) Charles Conrad of the Coast Guard spent a two day's leave over the past weekend in Carmel, as house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Johnson, renewing the friendships made while he was stationed on the Peninsula and appeared among the Gold Coast Troupers at the First Theater in Monterey. His attendance at Jennie the Jewel of the West on Saturday evening was hailed with delight by both cast and audience, when he slipped into costume and repeated his hit number in the olio. Petty Officer Conrad is at present instructing in chemical warfare at the Alameda Coast Guard base.

From Ranching to School

Oliver Bassett has returned to high school this fall after nearly three months spent on the Russ-Connick cattle ranch near Ferndale, where he helped with sheep-shearing, haying, operating a silo, learned how to drive a truck, consumed vast quantities of beef steak and home-grown vegetables and together with his summer pals made several trips to Eureka. Oliver's highly successful ranching experience came as a result of selecting the locality in which he wanted to work, hitch-hiking there and signing up with the government employment bureau. He reports that within one hour of his arrival in Eureka, he was a Russ-Connick ranch hand.

Meet the Director Party

A dinner party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Martin Baer on Thursday, Sept. 23, to afford another opportunity for their Carmel friends to meet Dr. and Mrs. Walter Heil, whose holiday from his post as director of the De Young Memorial Museum in San Francisco has been the signal for much entertaining h e r e a b o u t s. Present to enjoy one of Mrs. Baer's famous cous-cous dinners were Mr. Alec Miller, his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Wilgress, Mrs. Elliott Bright, Miss Katherine Van Horne, Mr. and Mrs. William O'Donnell, Dr. and Mrs. Heil, their daughter, Barbara, and Mrs. Gertrude Stewart.

The self-portrait exhibit, Meet the Artist, which Dr. Heil is now showing at the De Young Museum, and which includes a canvas by Martin Baer, will shortly be sent east for a showing in the Metropolitan Museum in New York.

To Entertain Pre-Flighters

Another feature is to be added to the regular Sunday afternoon entertainment now afforded the cadets of the Del Monte Pre-Flight school at the Barn of the Mission Ranch club under the auspices of Mrs. Phil K. Eberhart Pushes Who Done It Victim Over Carmel Cliffs

The new murder mystery Mignon Eberhart told Pine Cone feature writer Irene Alexander would have a Carmel setting made its bow in the form of a first installment in the October issue of the Ladies Home Journal, out this week.

Here in February visiting at Del Monte Lodge, Miss Eberhart in an interview for the Pine Cone told Miss Alexander of her enthusiasm for this locality and that she intended to use it as the background for her next "Who Done It."

The "Who Done It", entitled The Sisters, opens with a party at Del Monte Lodge and moves on to a ranch house in the hills immediately south of Carmel. The first victim strolls down a road, crosses the highway and following a footpath along the cliffs falls to her death in one of the whirlpools along the shore, pushed in by some unknown assailant, we hope.

The village police are called but in this emergency the "line was busy." The telephone operator however, summons the ambulance with pulomotor. When the police arrive, Chief Roy Fraties is not in the party because a cop the author calls "Anderson" phones back to report to the "Chief."

The first installment leaves us there, and Carmel will palpitate until next month to find out what police officials will be in charge of the case when foul play is suspected. Certainly it won't be the Carmel Police department because Roy Fraties wouldn't mess with it. It's out of the city limits and in the jurisdiction of the sheriff's office. We hope Mrs. Eberhart is aware of this.—W.C.

Defacers of Serra Statues Turned Over to Sheriff

Carmel Police this week apprehended the three high school boys who confessed to defacing the Father Serra statue several weeks ago at the junction of Camino Del Monte, Serra Avenue and Carpenter streets. They also admitted similar depredations on the Serra statue in the city park. In both cases they had daubed the statues with aluminum paint and tar.

As the Carpenter street statue is outside the city limits, Chief Roy Fraties turned the miscreants over to the sheriff to be dealt with by county authorities.

Preparing for Peace Theme of New Year For AAUW Members

The American Association of University Women began their new year with a tea and discussion of program plans at the home of Mrs. O. V. Ward in Pacific Grove on Wednesday afternoon. A number of guests who are eligible for membership added to the large number in attendance at the opening meeting. Miss Frances Whitehead, president of the Monterey Peninsula branch, was in charge of the afternoon's discussion.

"Preparing for Peace" was announced as the theme for this year's activities, with plans for study of current problems confronting the nation. International relations has been chosen as the subject for the October meeting, with Mrs. G. M. Beall directing the discussion, and for a later date a report will be given on the program of the International Relations Institute held at Mills College during the summer.

Miss Mabel Hoffman, chairman of patriotic activities, announced that the Monterey USO had appealed to the A.A.U.W. for immediate volunteers to help in handling the Travelers' Aid department which is especially concerned with assisting the wives of soldiers who come here to be near their men, and for whom the housing shortage creates great difficulty. She also presented the needs of Percival Observation Post in Pacific Grove, which has been one of the society's activities since it was first established.

Chairmen of the other departments presented plans for the year's activities. Other officers of the society are Mrs. Elizabeth Durein of Carmel, vice-president; Mrs. Helene Covell, secretary, and Mrs. Alice Carmean, treasurer.

Tea was served in the dining room at the close of the afternoon's program.—L.L.T.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

Cadet Corps

The girls won't have to go to Del Monte to get men in uniform any more—or at least that is what the boys at Carmel High hope. The reason for this is that a cadet corps is just being organized here.

Last week Mr. Getsinger went to the University of California where he drilled, attended lectures, did map-work and target practice. He also ate at the mess hall with all the others and wore a uniform, in fact it was just like regular army life. He is to be commandant of the cadet corps.

The cadets will drill one period two days a week and a half period on Friday. Uniforms may be bought by the cadets. — A. Pierce.

Student Court

Student court went into action last Tuesday, with Judge Warren presiding. Twelve people appeared, and all pleaded guilty. All were given a suspended sentence on one condition. The next time they were found guilty of the same offense they would get a very stiff penalty. Four people who received summons did not appear. They were given a contempt of court citation, and are to appear at the next session.—B. L. Fonteneau.

Mumps Party

The mumps have wreaked havoc among one of the classes at Carmel High. A group of eighth graders held a party at the home of Edith Elizalde one Saturday evening not so long ago. Shortly afterward, one of the guests was afflicted with the mumps. In consequence, all the guests at the party have been requested to remain away from school for a week.—B. L. Fontaneau.

Leaders Club

Page Leard, Ester Van Neil, Joan Janda, Andrea Del Monte, Jo-An Thorn, Mary Jane Reel and Betty Powell were initiated into the Leaders Club on Monday. It is an honor to become a leader; that is why the initiation sentence is always so stiff.

The pledges were required to take down their beautiful golden locks and plait them into pigtails. Yes, pigtails and fifteen of them! Even with a shortage on silk they wore one long stocking and a short bobby sock with two odd shoes. Dresses were worn backwards and inside out. During the lunch period the seven pledges were given further punishment. They ate their lunches on the stage in the cafeteria with the gleeful student body making it none too easy. The girls proved themselves worthy, and are now full fledged Leaders.—Ann Casati.

Yell Leader Try-Out

Carmel High School had its third student body meeting this Thursday. The big event of the meeting was the yell leader tryouts. There were two teams; each of which had the chance to lead the student body cheers.

The first team consisted of Ann McElroy, Nancy Fitzhugh and Mary Jane Reel. They wore white blouses, blue denim skirts and light red sweaters. They presented a pleasing picture to the student body as they led them in cheers.

The other team consisted of Mary McElroy and Sylvia Thorne. They wore Carmel High sweaters and white blouses. They also presented a charming picture. Both teams were exceptionally good and it will be a close race to see who will win.

It is interesting to note that two sisters, Ann and Mary McElroy are competing against each other for the position of cheer leader.

New officers installed were: Jack Fremont, president of the student body; Russel Bohlke as vice-president and Emile Passailaigue as secretary.

Mr. Getsinger talked to the students about student government.—A. Lucido.

First Dance

Carmel Hi's first official dance of the year will be held tomorrow night in the newly remodeled cafeteria of the Sunset Grammar School. This dance is being given to promote the sales of war bonds and stamps at our high school. A big turn-out is expected from all the students. Although the students of Carmel Hi greatly appreciate the use of Sunset's cafeteria, they are looking forward to the time when dimout restrictions will be lifted and their own cafeteria will be open for their dances.—R.K.E.

The Carmel Net-stars are back in the picture again. The tennis season does not start until sometime in the spring, but some of the hard whacking fellows turning out for practice now are Jim Boyland, Everet May, Price Getsinger and Ed Stetson. Many of the boys signed up for tennis are on the "eleven."

They will begin practice after football season.—Ann C.

Missionary Group Hears Chaplain

The Chaplain's School at Harvard University is a demonstration in practical brotherhood: men of all denominations are thrown in together, regardless of any wish they might have for companions of their own church, and they soon show the true brotherhood needed in the service. It is a "tough school," said Chaplain Brownell, the men being given the same basic training as any other recruit, under direction of sergeants as at any camp.

The chaplain doesn't handle a gun, but he learns the things he needs in the service; how to read maps, to protect himself under gas attack, first aid, burial of the dead under combat conditions, and the work of counseling recruits at the reception centers. In the service more men attend church than they would outside the Army, but many go to civilian churches in the camp area instead of the army chapel.

Members of the society found Chaplain Brownell's talk very interesting, and asked a number of questions at the close of the prepared speech. In the short business meeting the society voted to continue financial contributions to the work among the Italians carried on by Rev. Vincent Coletta, and to make some Christmas gift to the Indian work at Oraibi, as in former years.—L.L.T.

Lions Turn Waiters In Labor Crisis

When the Carmel Lions Club members were informed Tuesday night at their dinner meeting at the Pine Inn, that due to labor difficulties they would have to provide their own table service, it was voted that members who had been absent at the last meeting serve as waiters. They were Mayor P. A. McCreery, Romie Garneau and George Knapp.

Entertainment was provided by Gordon Ayers of the Army, who recited Dan McGrew, Casey at the Bat and other favorites. Guest from Monterey was Leonard Abinante. New members: Lee Dufur, local manager of the Purity Store and Arthur Thorne of the Carmel Realty.

Red Cross

By MRS. FRANCES DOUD

October is the month for all-out nurse recruitment, and the American Red Cross has undertaken to do this job for the government. The Army and Navy are counting on us and we cannot fail them. Their goal is 2,500 additional nurses per month for war duty in 1943—2,000 for the Army and 500 for the Navy.

To release one graduate nurse for service with the armed forces, and still maintain adequate health protection at home, two student nurses must be enrolled, three Nurses' Aides trained, and five women instructed in the techniques of Home Nursing. All women cannot be trained nurses, but all women can help supply these nurses by helping in the hospitals as Nurse's Aides, or by lessening the civilian need for medical personnel by caring for their own families—which a Home Nursing course trains them to do.

Classes are being organized by the chapter in Nurses' Aides and Home Nursing training, and will start as soon as enough women have signed up. Every woman can volunteer to do her share in one of these services but which one of us would volunteer for the task of explaining to a boy who had been wounded that a nurse wasn't available because we "didn't have time." MAKE time! ENROLL NOW!

Red Cross Headquarters in Carmel are on Dolores street between 7th and 8th, the telephone number is 2100.

Alec Miller Back Again in Carmel

Jane (Mrs. John Wilgress) made at various ages, from the high chair to the present, look down from their shelves about the studio, together with chubby heads of Baby Nicholas Miller and his other grandson, Oliver Wilgress. Tucked away out of sight are photographic records of the impressive works in wood and stone which adorn fifty or more of the great cathedrals and public buildings of England, Canada and the United States and the delicate fauns and playful Pans now inhabiting many famous gardens, here and abroad.

Born in Glasgow, the son of a cabinet maker, Alec Miller was apprenticed at thirteen to a wood carver, and for the next ten years of his life he worked at the decorative carving of furniture, in his spare time studying figure drawing and anatomy in the art school of Glasgow.

There was time spent, too, in study of mediaeval carving in France, Italy and Belgium, and by the time Alec Miller, not yet twenty-three, had translated the Divine Comedy of Dante into six panels of bas relief for a large cabinet now in the possession of Admiral Strode of the Royal Navy, he was established as a sculptor.

In 1902 he was called to England to take charge of a department in the Guild of Handcraft, with its headquarters at Chipping Campden, in Gloucestershire. Here one of a group who worked with almost holy zeal, and in direct collaboration with Charles R. Ashbee, noted architect, town planner and founder of the Arts and Crafts Exhibition society, Alec Miller laid the foundations for a steadily mounting fame in the realm of ecclesiastical sculpture.

Whatever the medium in which he works—be it stone or wood, all of his sculpture is carved, never modeled and cast. In the field of portraiture in wood, he is a pioneer, his first, a likeness of Mrs. Miller and his infant son, done in 1912, was exhibited in London, winning for the artist a silver medal and a deluge of commissions. His sitters have ranged in age from ten days to 84 years—yet "sitters" is scarcely the word, for Alec Miller has his unique way of obtaining a likeness. He demands no posing, and never uses a photograph, asking only an opportunity for close observation and study of his model, in this way catching something arrestingly vital in his transcription. His wood portraits are for the most part two-thirds lifesize, and take him about a week to complete.

Mr. Miller's first ecclesiastical work was a Madonna and Child for the church at Urswick, Lancashire, carved in 1903, and in the years which followed, his hand contributed to the rich treasury of church art a wide variety of sculpture, from the slender silver altar cross in Litchfield Cathedral to the monumental teakwood St. Michael in the Cathedral of Coventry, measuring twelve feet to the tips of its wings, its main figure over eight feet in height. Ironically enough, this statue, added in 1920 to the buttress of the west wall as a memorial to the men sacrificed in World War I, has been demolished by the bombs of today's cataclysm along with at least five years of his other work in Coventry alone.

Carvings of his in stone and in wood are found in the reredos of the church at Calne, in Wilts., in the London Guildhouse, in the lovely Madonna and Child at Tewkesbury Abbey, at the Royal Naval Barracks chapel at Calshot, and in Bournemouth. All of the carving in St. Luke's Church there, completed in 1938, is his handiwork, including three gigantic figures on the rood beam and five of colored stone on the reredos above the altar. In stone, too, are most of his beasts and angels which adorn the buildings of Oxford University. When the last of the two sisters of Walter Pater died, Alec Miller was commissioned by the Canon of Oxford to carve the statue of a Madonna and Child for Holywell Church in Magdalen College, as a memorial to the three Paters.

The seven panels of the reredos of Christ Church in Montreal, five feet in height, and depicting in stone the life of Christ from the Annunciation to the Ascension, were carved by Mr. Miller—the work of a year, and dedicated as a war memorial in 1923.

In 1910, on his first visit to the United States, he was commissioned to do a series of stone gargoyles for Bryn Mawr College, and upon his return, thirty years later, he spent all the summer there, doing decorative sculpturing on the new buildings. Frederick Keppel, the noted art dealer of New York, acquired his little stone figure of Puck for his Long Island garden, and a faun found its way to a Rhode Island home.

During the past twenty-five years Alec Miller has exhibited extensively both in London, at the Royal Academy, and in New York, Philidelphia, Detroit, Cleveland, Rochester, at the Corcoran Gallery in Washington, and in numerous other art centers.

A much sought-after speaker, he came to the United States on a lecture tour in 1939, accompanied by Mrs. Miller, and upon the outbreak of the war, a few short weeks after their arrival, decided to remain. Last year he was chosen as Waid Lecturer for the Architectural Institute of America, and journeyed from coast to coast, encountering sub-zero weather in such spots as Montana, giving a series of twenty-two talks in the various universities which include schools of architecture. Later he conducted a course of lectures on the history of architecture at Stillwater A & M, in Oklahoma.

Sculptor, lecturer, teacher, with his rich background of travel and achievement, his quiet charm—and his no less interesting wife—Alec Miller brings much that is worthwhile to life in Carmel.

Sam Colburn, Carmel artist whose two landscapes in the current watercolor show at the Carmel Gallery "fairly sparkle in the freshness of their color and pattern. They are composed so soundly that the observer can actually feel the space depicted and could easily imagine moving about in these bits of countryside. This is so rare a quality achieved in composition that it rates the highest admiration," Pat Cunningham in her review of the Water Color Show, pg. 1 of this issue.

Dr. Chung Angel At Barn Door Show

By WAYNE CAMERON

"Angel" at the Barn Door Canteen Saturday night, and distinguished guest at any gathering, Dr. Margaret Chung, an "angel" in many ways to hundreds of our soldiers, sailors and marines, told of her "sons" originally limited to the Flying Tigers and now including over six hundred service men all over the world with whom she corresponds personally.

Preceding her talk, Jim Cooke showed his popular slides, Marian Perkins and Bobby Brown tapped out some fast routines to Geo. Miller's accompaniment at the piano.

Gladys Young, contralto of Stage Door Canteen fame, gave lovely Zigeuner, Star Dust, Deep in My Heart and Kiss Me Again.

June Delight II in a really red dress gave us castanettes al la spoons. Grace McRay and her monologues entertained well, especially her Itchy Story.

Following Dr. Chung's talk, three other angels, Jane Arnold, Jeanne Lockwood and Micaela Martinez were called upon to sing.

Sgt. Bob Bratt of the air corps literally rolled 'em in the aisles with his pantomime of Soldier's First Pay Day, Youth with First Chew of Tobacco, Chinese on Burma Road and Queen Victoria Taking a Bath.

Johnny Elizalde boogied his last piano session for a while — his training for the air corps starts this week.

Fire Week Means Much to Carmel

woodsy background. It is a time housewives check on the shortage of papers and inflammable miscellany in attics, closets and basements. Merchants are reminded to look over their premises for hazardous conditions they might have inadvertently allowed to develop.

Fire Marshal Leidig will make the rounds of the business district in the latter part of the week to check on the work of the merchants in cleaning up their buildings. The earlier part of the big week is devoted to the school children's traditional ride to and from the fire house on the fire engine. The childern wind up the week with an appropriate assembly program.
